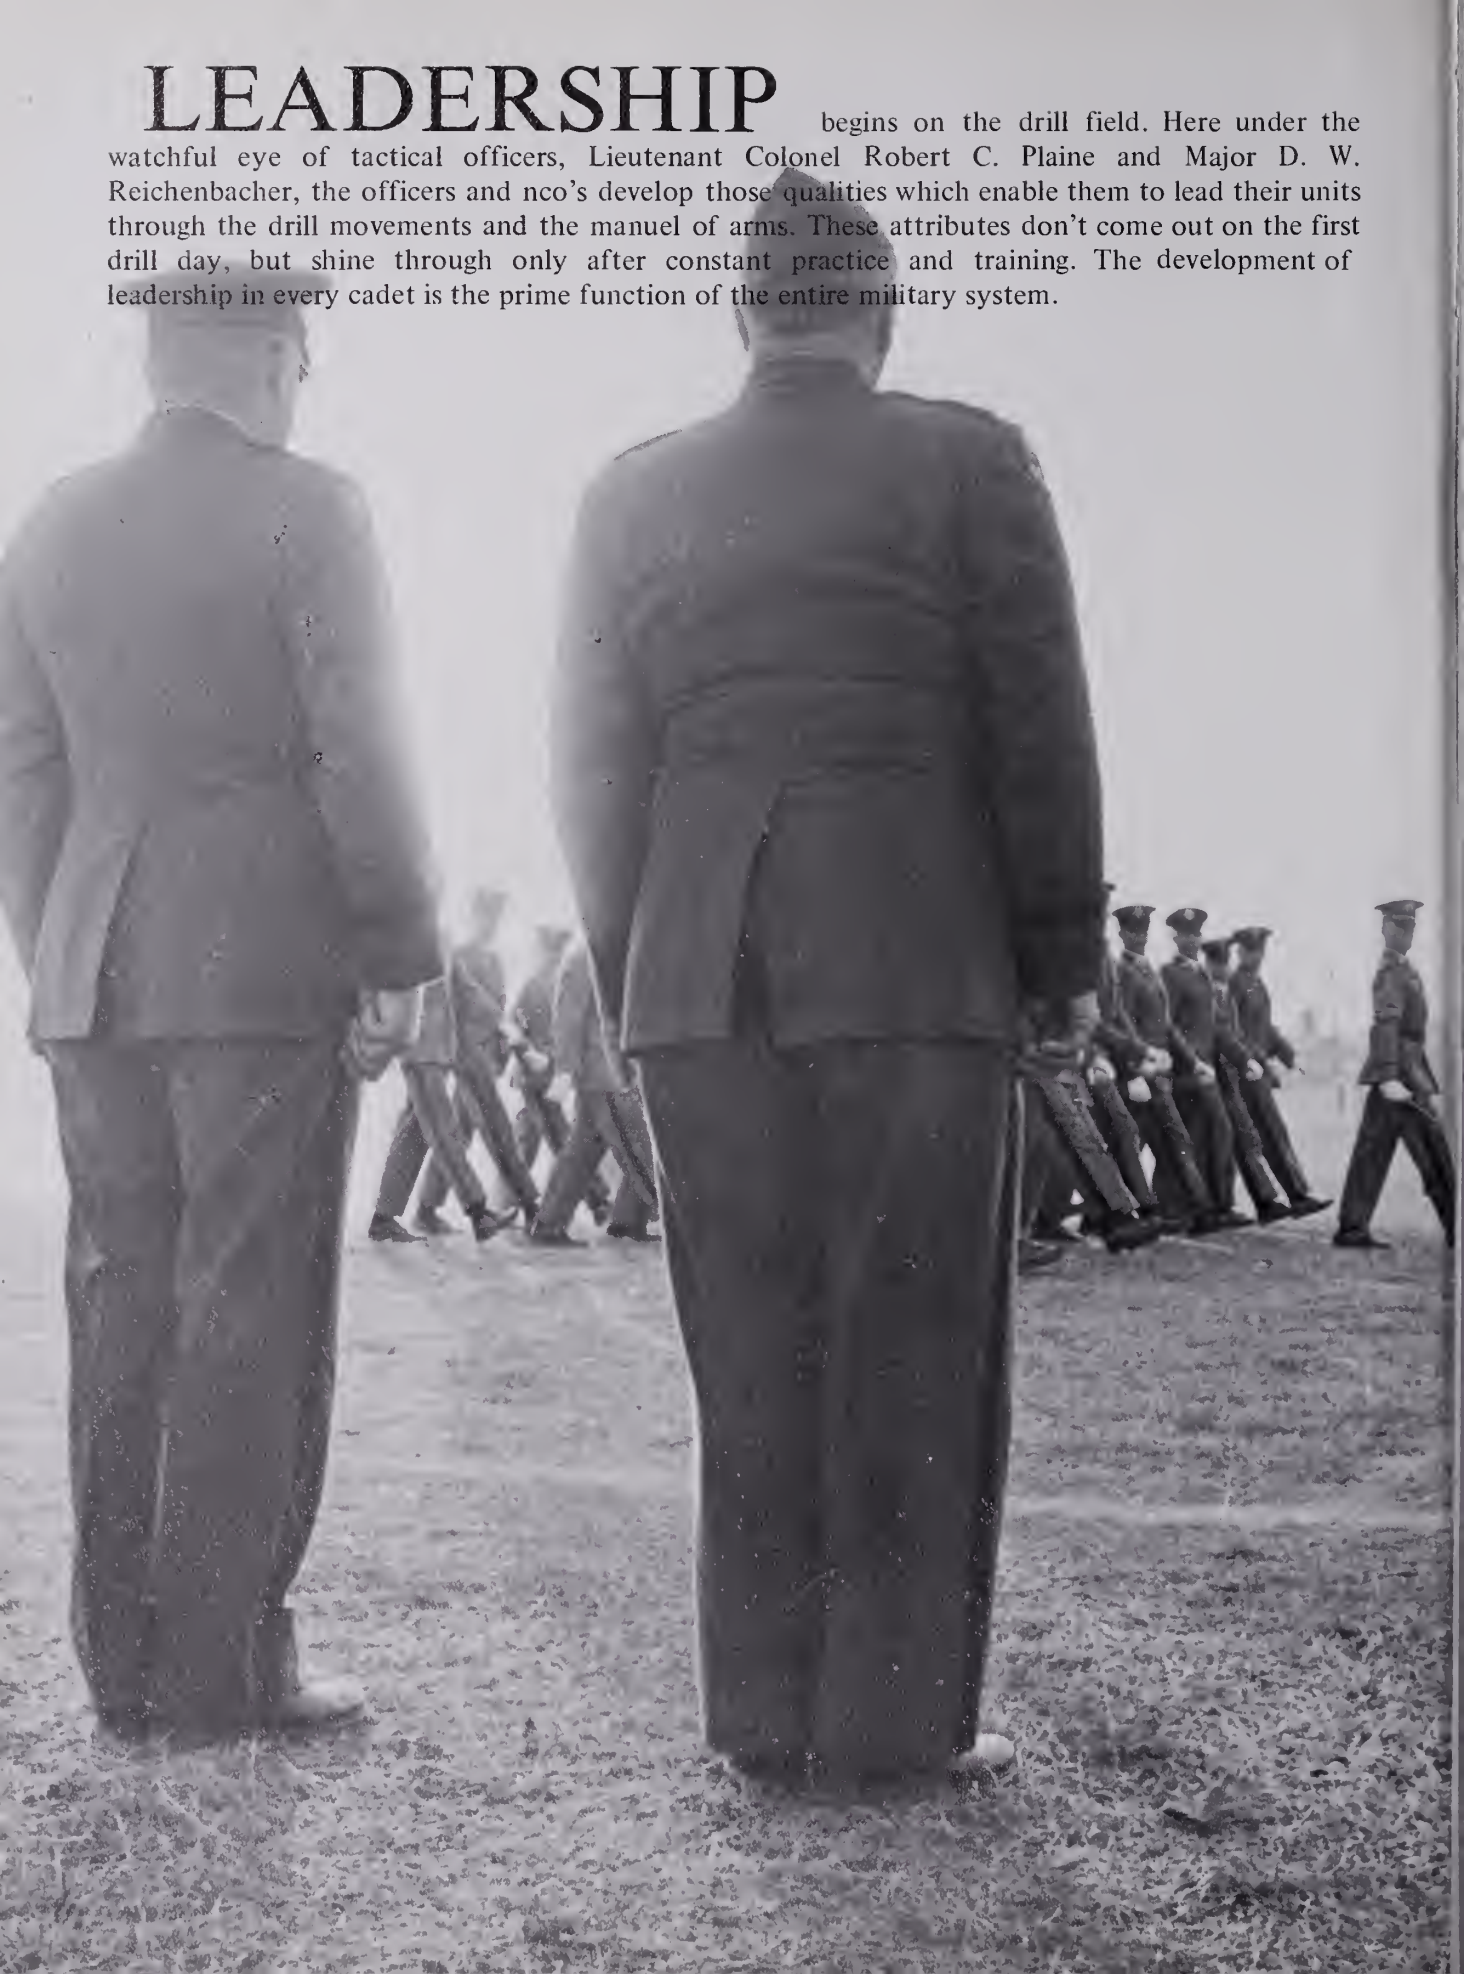
LEADERSHIP

begins on the drill field. Here under the watchful eye of tactical officers, Lieutenant Colonel Robert C. Plaine and Major D. W. Reichenbacher, the officers and nco's develop those qualities which enable them to lead their units through the drill movements and the manuel of arms. These attributes don't come out on the first drill day, but shine through only after constant practice and training. The development of leadership in every cadet is the prime function of the entire military system.



Leadership

at Monday drill is a regular thing. From the very first Monday, a drill ceremony is carried out. Here we see the company staffs and platoon leaders assemble before "Pass in Review," to receive orders from Col. Plaine. After marching back to their units, they carry out the remainder of the ceremony and then go on to further drill as individual platoons or companies. During these exercises, the "vets", pass on to the "raw recruits" the valuable experience they have gained.

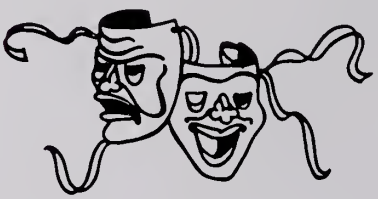
Commands

given as a cadet officer or nco prepare the individual for leadership in the outside world. Having gained the ability to lead men onto the ordinary drill field, surely one would be able to lead in any endeavor he would undertake. The giving of a command is also a responsibility. The undertaking of responsibility is necessary in the normal development of a human being. A person with no responsibility is of no worth to any person or institution; not even to himself.

Respect

is gained through leadership. A cadet officer at Frederick is chosen because of his leadership ability and his conduct. Because of this he is respected by his fellow cadets and by the faculty. Capt. Fridley was chosen to be a company commander, though only a junior. He is shown here receiving a little of his well-earned "respect" from the guard mount, while serving as officer of the day. Guard duty is one of the many responsibilities of the officers and of the cadets.

Humanities are another aspect of the leadership qualities developed at FMA. To become a cast member of any theatrical production, one has to undertake a grave responsibility. Besides giving up their period and free time, a lot of hard work is put in by the participants. Under the professional direction of Captain Wilton Sale, the theatrical productions here at Frederick have become known for their non-amateurism. A scene from the Senior Class Play, "A Sleep of Prisoners", depicts the four prisoners dreaming a sequence from the Bible story of Cain and Abel.



"Dial 'M' for Murder", presented by the Drama Club was the first play of the year and had a mixed cast of cadets, faculty, and guest actors.

PERFORMANCE IN LEADERSHIP

During the course of each school year, the Corps of Cadets performs in several parades and festivities in the Tidewater area. These activities are performances of the leadership ability of the officers and nco's as well as of the marching ability of corps itself. Frederick prides itself in being one of the best, if not the best, marching unit in the area.

MOTHER'S DAY: Leadership Receives Its Reward

Every year on the occasion commonly known as Mother's Day, Frederick Military Academy celebrates its annual Parent's Day. On Parent's Day our honored guests have a chance to view their children parading before them in a manner befitting a military cadet. Some parents even get to see their son receive an award of some sort. All the officers receive awards and the scholastically inclined are presented medals for their generally unheralded achievements. The two boys pictured below, Jim Borror and Jay Kurs have just received ribbons for being best drilled old and new cadet respectively. Parent's Day is a big shindig at FMA and the results are usually enjoyed by all.

CHANGE OF COMMAND: Leadership Is Passed On

Near the end of the year, a ceremony is performed on the drill field knows as "Change of Command". The leadership of the Battalion is exchanged between the retiring senior battalion commander and the oncoming junior battalion commander. All the seniors form up behind the staff and review the corps as it passes in review. As the corps passes by the leadership is passed on.

GRADUATION: REMEMBERING

May 31, 1968

The Seniors line up in nervous anticipation beside the canteen. They stand conversing about how great it will be to be free. The Faculty mill around in the lobby beside the library. They too are conversing, but about how happy they are to finally be rid of the Seniors. A quick walk down the hall, a few short speeches, the reading of a list of 45 names, and the CLASS OF 1968 is dismissed! They throw their hats up in the air as they throw away cadet life.

"WE SHALL NOT PASS THIS WAY AGAIN."

Forward

is a place to look. We are all optimists and look forward to the future. What we will find there, we do not know, but we will look anyway.

The 1968 CANNON is an expression of our look to the future. The upperclassmen look forward to their college life and the underclassmen look forward to their life as upperclassmen. This is an endless cycle of which only an infinitiesimal part is presented here.

As you leaf through the pages of this annual, we hope you also bring back memories of the friends of the past. They have affected you and your future, and their remembrance is the main, if not the only, purpose of this publication.

In Memoriam

Mrs. Marie Crooks Beazley, Sr. (1893-1967) held Frederick Military Academy deep in her heart. For her, the depth of our gratitude and the sincerity of our respect is greatest; for she gave her unselfish devotion and service in developing future citizens of America spiritually, mentally, socially, and physically.

In the words of her husband, our co-founder and benefactor, "Frederick Military Academy has lost its greatest rooter."

Our President

Cadets:

This school year, 1967-68 marks our seventh year of operation as an academy separate and apart from Frederick College. It is by far superior to the previous years in many respects.

The cadets in general and the Seniors in particular have usually demonstrated a maturity of judgement beyond their years. This inevitably makes a happier school year such as this one has been. It has been our best!

Our teacher-pupil ratio of 1:14 is a very enviable one. It means much more individual attention for our cadets, which in turn, provides better educational opportunities for those who take advantage of it. Many cadets have experienced above average achievement in the classroom for the first time in several years. Self-confidence has grown as a result.

We are still experiencing "growing pains" and probably will continue to do so for many years to come, but we feel that in seven short years we have established a good name in the large community which we serve. This is a tribute to the faculty and cadets who have worked for continual improvement despite the set-backs and frustrations which we have encountered along the way.

Philip B. Inscoe

"Our" president, for surely his services are extended to us, is a great administrative person. However, Colonel Inscoe also performs other important tasks besides those in the administrative phase of his job. To say the least, none of these "outside," self-imposed duties should be passed up without appreciative thought. Just to name a few of these wouldn't be enough to show his outstanding contribution to the morale of our school. He supports all our athletic events, both home and away; he attends our parades; he aids the annual staff; he presents special awards; he assists . . .

The Commandant

Lt. Col. Floyd H. West AUS (Ret), who was awarded the Bronze Star for Gallantry in Action in World War II, now serves as Commandant of Cadets at FMA. He previously held the position of Associate P.M.S. Besides the responsibility of maintaining the discipline of the Corps, Col. West's duties range from that of supervising the chow hall, acting as judge and jury in demerit appeals, to finally, his most joyous task, that of granting special LIBERTY. This is a man upon whom we all depend for leadership.

Guidance Counselor

Maj. C. P. Mooring is an occasional English teacher, as well as, Student Guidance Counselor here at Frederick. In addition to the long hours spent in counseling cadets, scheduling of classes, and preparing college applications for seniors, Maj. Mooring also administers such standardized tests as the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Tests and College Board Examinations, coaches our Hi-Q team and sponsors the CANNON staff. This is a man who accomplishes much and to whom we, the cadets of Frederick Military Academy, are deeply indebted. Maj. Mooring is pictured here with Mrs. Oliver, the guidance secretary.

The faith rests on the proposition that man is a political animal, that participation in political decisions is necessary to his fulfillment and his happiness, that all men must be sufficiently educated and informed to take part in making these decisions, that protection against arbitrary power, though indispensable, is insufficient to make either free individuals that such a society must make positive provisions for its development into a community learning together; for this is what political participation, government by consent, and the civilization of the dialogue all add up to.

Cpl. Joseph Adams .....Jeff McVey
Pvt. Tim Meadows ..... Bill Jones
Directed by .....Capt. Wilton F. Sale

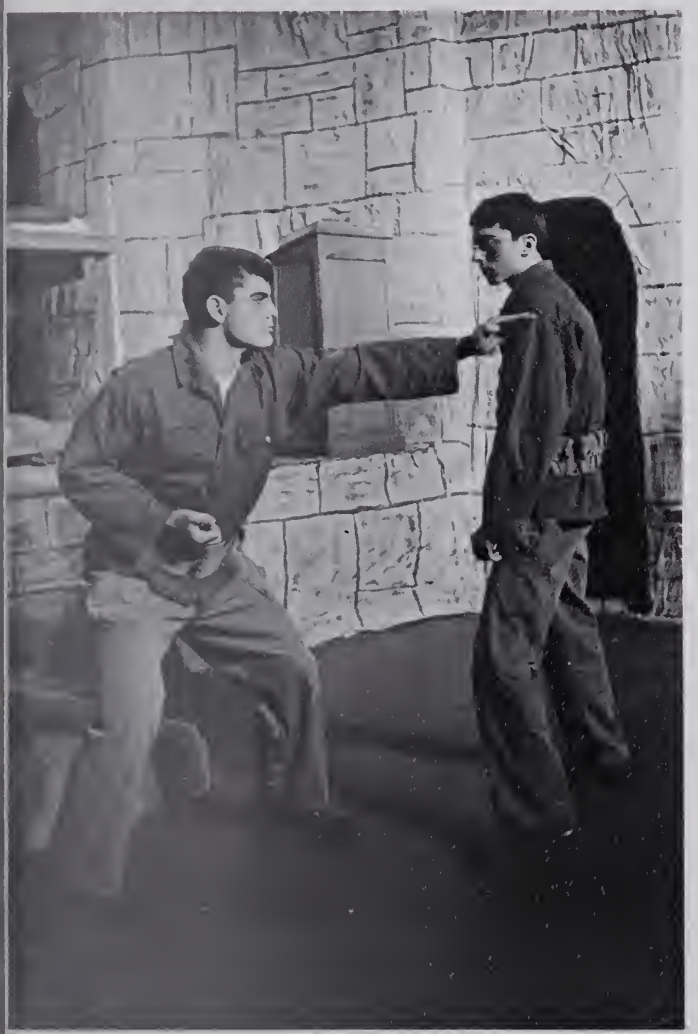
This controversial drama, which was presented as the Senior Class Play, reflects the religious overtones of man's constant strife against his fellow man. Through four dreams, initiated into the characters' sub-conscious by a reading of the Bible, the four prisoners relive the conflicts of Cain and Abel, David and Absalom, Abraham and Isaac, and Shadrac, Meshac, and Abednego, In the play's last sequence, the men are shown the answer to the problem; that "The enterprise is exploration unto God."

Jim Stanley, assistant director, and Woody Gay, stage manager, discuss production notes after a tough dress rehearsal.

Rusty Bryant, sound effects man, Tom Atkinson and Ed Ball, electricians, operate the tape recorder and rheostat controls during one of the 32 practices before production night.

Sandy Block, Frank Lawford, Jeff McVey, and Bill Jones practice one of the many scenes in which conflict occurs.

OF PRISONERS



Cpl. Joab silently instructs Absalom in the art of unarmed combat.

King David–"Is the young man Absalom safe?"

Meadows–"Lord, where we fail as men, we fail as deeds of time."

Marine's Parents Receive Medal In Posthumous Ceremony

A Purple Heart Ceremony honoring the memory of Marine Cpl. James D. Rader, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Brown, Sr., 5279 Tiffany Court, Cape Coral, who was killed in action in Viet Nam December 6, 1967, was held February 3, at the Marine Corps Reserve Training Center in West Palm Beach, Florida.

Attending the ceremony were Cpl. Rader's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Brown, who received their son's citations, a sister Mrs. Mona L. Walker, of Williamsburg, Va., and a brother John Michael Brown of Cape Coral.

Making the Purple Heart presentations was Major Alvin P. Ridgway, Jr., company commander of the West Palm Beach Reserve unit. Other awards to be presented to Mrs. Brown are: National Defense Medal, Viet Nam Service Medal, and Vietnamese Campaign Medal.

The 22-year-old Leatherneck volunteered for a second tour of duty in Viet Nam where he previously earned two Purple Hearts.

He was killed by hostile mortar fire during an operation near Quang Tri, South Viet Nam, while a member of Company C, 1st Battalion, 4th Marine Regiment.

Cpl. Rader was born October 8, 1945 in the Yorktown-Newport News area of Virginia and graduated from Frederick Military Academy in Portsmouth. After joining the Marine Reserves in which he served six months, he joined the regular Marine Corps and trained at Camp LeJeune, Parris Island and attended school at Coronado, California.

The parents were informed of Marine Rader's death by Maj. G. V. Jeffreys, Jr., West Palm Beach Inspector-Instructor. The body was returned to Cape Coral, where full military honors were rendered by the West Palm Beach Marine unit in the military section of Memorial Gardens, Fort Myers.

Survivors include his mother, Mrs. Charles O. Brown, Sr., his stepfather, Charles O. Brown, CWO, USN (Ret.); John Michael Brown, a brother, all of Cape Coral; a sister, Mrs. Mona L. Walker, Williamsburg, Virginia; Charles O. Brown, Jr., a brother, of VPI, Blacksburg, Virginia; and his grandmother, Mrs. Ella Rader, Monetta, Virginia.

Militarism is the great preserver of our ideals of hardihood, and human life with no use for hardihood would be contemptible.

William James

MILITARY

COL. ROBERT G. PLAINE

Professor Of Military Science

For many thousand years, mankind has waged wars for both conquest and peace. The battle between these dominant features of man's basic nature have forced the ideas and spirit of militarism upon the thoughts and actions of the civilized world. The corps of cadets may not fully realize the prominent role of "the military spirit" in this modern age, but its eminance on campus is constantly felt. And nowhere is it more fully expressed than in the figure of Colonel Robert G. Plaine. His efficiency and wisdom in dealing with military affairs is both respected and somewhat feared by all. But it is not fear that compels us to quick performance of responsibilities and complete attention to stated orders. It is his integrity and total dedication to the true "military spirit" which draws our loyalty and obedience to his decisions Colonel Plaine will always remain the personification of FMA and the ideals it seeks to teach the men who pass through her gates.

MAJ. REICHENBACHER

Associate P.M.S.

. . . that the faith is true and adorable which leads a soldier to throw away his life in obedience to a blindly accepted duty, in a cause which he little understands, in a plan of campaign of which he has no notion, under tactics of which he does not see the use.—Oliver Wendell

Peace is guarded by violence and totalitarianism is repelled by its own principles. This is the price we must pay for protection of a chosen way of life. To prepare men for such sacrifices is among the most difficult tasks in our society. Major D. W. Reichenbacher has shown himself to be fully capable of achieving obedience and military bearing in even the most difficult of circumstances. There can be no better way of studying military life than to observe the person of Major Reichenbacher.

. . . AND THEIR DOMAIN

LT. COLONEL D.B. MACLEAN

Battalion Commander

The Battalion Commander, whose varied and very demanding job takes him to the far reaches of the greater metropolis of Portsmouth, Norfolk, and Friendly, assumes a great responsibility upon receiving the rank of cadet lieutenant colonel. His duties require a complete loyalty to the school and an unfailing attention to military discipline and efficient operation which many would not be willing to accept.

Operating at an efficiency which often dismayed his subordinates and delighted his superiors, Lt. Col. Douglas B. MacLean, more commonly known as "Bubbles", not only has managed to instill military proficiency in both officers and cadets, but has also achieved academic status and participated in many extracurricular activities, a precedent for a Battalion Commander.

Col. MacLean's close attention to military procedures and rules has not always earned him appreciation from fellow cadets, but it has earned him a great measure of respect from all concerned.

BATTALION STAFF

Any military unit which is properly conducted needs not the leadership of one man, but the leadership of a group of men under the command of one man. The battalion staff, under the command of Lt. Col. D. B. MacLean, provides the core from which the many aspects of running the cadet corps are conquered and brought under control. (At last count there were 357 of these aspects.)

Consisting of Maj. Jack Wells, executive officer; Capt. Jesse Forrest, adjutant; Lt. Richard Little, armory officer; and Sgt. Maj. George Schinto, ranking NCO; the battalion staff is typical of the military awareness found at FMA. Attentive to all assigned responsibilities, the staff is at the time greatly influenced by the frolics of the cadet corps as are the cadets by the frolics of the battalion staff which sometimes prove to be many indeed.

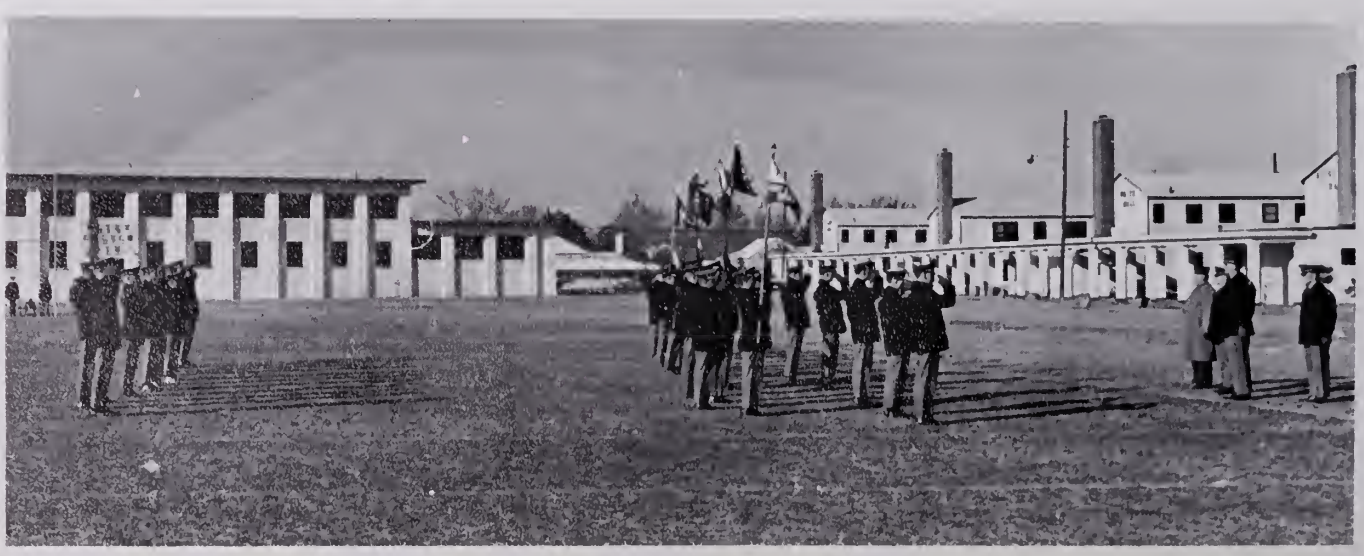
OFFICER CADRE

There are actually two worlds at Frederick Military Academy: that of the lowly privates and NCO's, and the world of the officers. Physically the difference is a set of pips and a flashy sabre, but mentally the differences are many. To be an officer means the assumption of many responsibilities and a more active part in the overall conduct of the corps. It also means the entrance into a cat and mouse game where they must simultaneously set the military example for the corps of cadets and be as devilish as humanly possible. There is often more of the latter than the former for many reasons. Who remembers the perfect pass–in-reviews or the "gun-ho" actions? It is always the secret party on campus, the rendezvous with that hole in the fence, the BS sessions after taps, or the other thousand and one frivolous acts that a person remembers. In this too, the officers set the example as long as Col. Plaine does not know. But it is all in fun as life should be.



ARMORY STAFF

Every Monday afternoon, 300 cadets joyously assemble at the armory to receive their 9 lb. bundle of joy from the wonderful armory staff. It is they who lovingly report us when we fail to clean our rifle; it is they who jokingly send us back to clean our rifle when they find dirt behind the doflitchebob? How can we ever thank them for being so kind, considerate, and thoughtful. Let 'em step outside the gate and we'll thank them!

Standing: G. F. Williford, M. F. McCall, R. R. Rasmussen, C. A. Wilburn; Seated: Lt. R. W. Little, J. S. Mardre.

RANGE STAFF

The duties of the range staff prove to be very demanding for those select few who prove themselves worthy for the honor of being on the staff. These duties include sweeping floors, sifting sand from the bullets and empty cases, cleaning the pistols and rifles used for firing, and dusting the shelves in the range. These are all difficult jobs and require a great deal of skill. The members of the range staff have shown themselves worthy to the challenge of these demands and have provided a janitorial service that the cadet corps greatly appreciates.

JR. N.R.A.

The firing teams on campus have participated widely with many teams along the East Coast. Notable amidst the competition has been the Varsity Pistol Team which has had meets with both West Point and the U.S. Coast Guard Academy.

In addition to the satisfaction gained in participation on a rifle of pistol team, there are also other benefits. The proper use of fire arms is one of the basic items which a member learns. This can be of great value in the future whether it be in military or civilian life. But if serious reasons are not acceptable, there is always the joy of just feeling the kick of a rifle or pistol as it goes off.

THE KEY CLUB

Key Club members building a 50 ft. fish pond stocked with guppies.

Built upon the principle of civic service in the school and community, the International Key Club has earned for itself a position of much esteem among the citizenry of the nation and of the world. The initiative and interest in humanity upon which the club is based provides an active environment in which the youth of today can develop into the leaders of tomorrow.

In keeping with these principles of leadership, the Key Club at Frederick Military Academy has continuously given of its time and services to the improvement of the campus and the community.

Among the many projects which the members of the Key Club have conducted were charity drives for the March of Dimes and the Christmas Joy Fund, the placement of PARKING signs of campus, beautification of the campus by planting trees, painting and decorcoration of the goalpost for football games, a smashing car bash, and the laying of a sidewalk to the flagpole.

The activities of the Key Club have been greatly appreciated by both the faculty and cadets and with the continued whole-hearted participation of its members, the Key Club should remain, for years to come, the most active club on campus and a great source of pride and satisfaction for its members.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

The members of the National Honor Society are among the ranks of the elite in scholastic honors. As the name proclaims, it is an honorary society where to be a member is one of the highest goals in any individual's academic life. The I'Anson chapter of the Society at Frederick exemplifies the ideals of the true scholar and its members are among the leaders in both the military and academic life.

This is actually the primary purpose of the National Honor Society: to provide recognition for the students who have distinguished themselves in scholastic endeavors and to provide incentive for further achievements. Membership into the Society should be based upon all the ideals that truly mark the leader of tomorrow. Otherwise there can be no sense of achievement in being a member.

Nowhere else on the legendary campus of FMA does there exists a club of more renown than the Physics Lab Club. Under the paternal guidance of Maj. Thomas Garrett, Jr., the mysteries of falling chalk and the intricacies of the $1.29 slide rule have been revealed to the obedient, studious members of this "club to end all clubs". Dedicated to the past memory of true science, the club has set for itself the goal of rewriting the physics book in the form of a first grade reader. They have already taken great strides toward achieving their goal and will not retreat until they have won.

Somewhere In The Dark Reaches Of Frederick Military Academy Lies

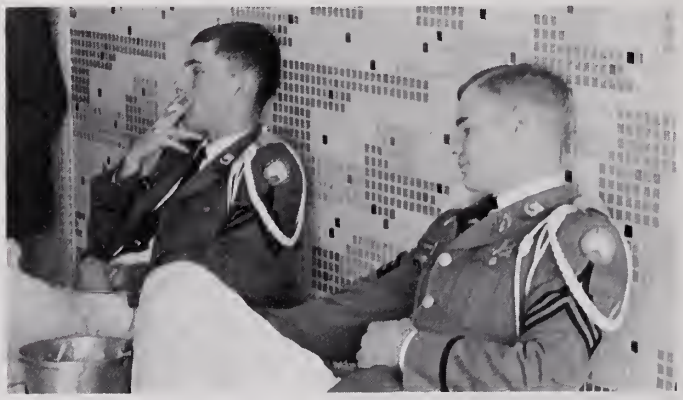
Your friendly FMA guru.

With no radios, no stereos, no hi-fies, and no beer, the annual staff struggled through the year with fluctuating spirits and a resolute drive.

Providing moral encouragement, as well as physical support in the posterior in times of extreme laziness, Maj. Mooring, our sponsor, has been more than a faculty officer and advisor to us. He has become another cadet in character, a respected person to whom we can reveal our problems and complaints and hope for a path of action. This we most gratefully appreciate.

Our gallant editor working diligently on The Cannon, now rated number one by the "We Cut You Book of the Month Club".

Our sports editor. The light comes on when a brilliant idea hits him so darkness reigns.



The quality of an annual depends a great deal upon the strenuous efforts of its photographers. These are ours.

I'm really not jolly. I've just got a mouth full of peanut butter.

If you make me work I'll cry.

Presenting the 1968 Cannon Staff starring Sandy Block as editor and general supervisor; Mike Coleman in charge of sweeping floors; Woody Gay, our budding artist; also James D. Morton III and Robo Schidle as Brain Man and Boy Blunder and Charlie King and Steve Luther, members of the original spondaic club.

DRAMA CLUB

In the militarized, technologically oriented atmosphere of Frederick, the cadets often are not adequately exposed to the many cultural aspects of society. This situation has been partially rectified by the presence of the Drama Club on the campus. Under the sponsorship of Capt. W. F. Sale, the members of the club learn the basic difficulties in the proper production of drama on the stage. Their knowledge has been a great asset to the production of the plays presented here each year. The outstanding work of this club will no doubt prompt the creation of other classes and clubs devoted to the study of the finer arts.

GLEE CLUB

The Frederick Military Academy Glee Club is still a relatively young group having been formed in its present state in 1963. Since that time it has shown itself to be a group which has the potential of being one of the better high school choral groups in the Tidewater area. It is this goal that Capt. R. J. Reynolds, director of the thirty man chorus, and Mrs. Reynolds, pianist for the group, have slowly but steadily sought to achieve.

As is true in any endeavor, the quality of the desired product depends entirely upon the enthusiasm and dedication the people involved have for their work. In music a person must become totally involved in the emotion which each song projects. It is in this respect that the Glee Club has the most room for improvement and growth. It is only through a persistent search for perfection that the Glee Club can be counted among the best in men's choruses.

STUDENT CHAPLAIN SERVICE

"It is the heart which experiences God, and not reason. This, then, is faith: Godfelt by heart, not by reason."—Blaise Pascal

In an age where God is proclaimed dead by many, to dedicate oneself to the study of the Diety is often met with ridicule. These cadets have found the need for God in their lives and they express their faith in the duties they perform in he Church services on campus. Under the guidance of Capt. W. Presson, minister on the campus, the Student Chaplain Service provides the religious atmosphere which is an important part of many people's lives.

Religion has become a balance between pure reason and abstract faith. The presence of one by the other cannot be denied nor its importance discredited. But the foolish are not in the middle but on the extremes.

INFIRMARY STAFF

The cadets who serve on the Infirmary Staff gain much experience in the use of medication and the care of patients. In their duties they are supervised by Mr. Doerr, medical attendant on the campus. Their services are augmented by those of Dr. Buchcannon whose advice in more serious cases has proved invaluable and whose help at the infirmary is appreciated by all who wait each day for the green pills, which are good for colds and broken legs, and the pink pills, which are actually candy mint.

T. H. Brady, Dr. Buchanan, C. E. Allton, Mr. Doerr, J. D. Allton.

CHOW HALL STAFF

Superior artistic ability is not often found in the modern youth of today, but here we find among this group of budding scholars talent beyond compare. The subtle streaks of yellow butter blended in with the brillant green of last night's peas seem to stand out boldly against the blue of the "sterile" tray. The coffee cups are so skillfully laced with dark brown stains of some past use that it is only through a diligent search that we procure a bleak, dull, clean cup. America, beware! We unleash upon you the flower of our youth.

Seriously, the duties of the Chow Hall Staff require a great deal of the cadet's time. Three times a day they must report to the Chow Hall to clean dishes and eating utensils. Their only reward is the food they carry from the Chow Hall. Such Sacrifice!

SUPPLY HALL STAFF

D. L. Briggs, C. H. Bateman, R. T. Wilson, F. O. Wright-supervisor, W. P. McCurry, C. K. Frick, R. J. Atkinson, R. A. Johnson, C. D. Spry, J. M. Guida, M. S. Holzsweig.

Under the moral and oral supervision of Mr. F. O. Wright, the Supply Hall Staff has distinguished itself in the efficient handling of all types of laundry from G. to J. With Mr. Wright, locally known as FO, in the fore front with such philosophical ditties as "Wheel 'em, Deal 'em, Rock 'em, and Real 'em", among worst, he has lead his "not just white but bright" team of lads to campus renown. Functioning without complaints, the members of this staff willingly give their time to the performance of their duties. Their only acknowledged reward is the receiving of toilet paper during the times it becomes scarce. The reward is well worth the effort.

AND WITH FALTERING STEPS WE BEGAN

On the fourth of September, 1967, 400 boys entered the gates of Frederick Military Academy to learn a new way of life. Military living was totally new and in the days to come some would accept it and some wouldn't. But for all, it was an experience that would not soon be forgotten.

The first days were confused ones for all; leaders learning how to lead and the first year cadets learning how to follow. The first few days of excitement soon settled down to the everyday routine that would be ours for nine months. This then, is how it began. . .

"Hey Fellows! Lets start a movie house on campus!"

"No, it's not a Birthday Suit. It's a uniform."

"What do they think we are – two rows of corn?"

"Sir, could you tell us what FO and all those other words mean?"

"While we're here let's have a sit-down strike."

"Feels like the doctor's office, doesn't it?"

"That's it Mom; go take a nice long drink before we go in."

"That's my boy, the third one, in the second row, in the fourth bunch, in the . . ."

"Let's skip this place and go play some ping pong."

The purpose of Parent's Day is to allow the parents of the cadets the chance to see the academic and militaristic progress their son has made and, where none is apparent, to find the reason through conferences with the teachers. These conferences are of much help to the student and to the parents understanding of the school system here.

"This is a nice place to visit, but I wouldn't want to live here."

BUT WE WERE READY ON PARENT'S DAY

"Okay everybody, here's the plan. We march on Washington, D. C. tomorrow."

"I think we've been infiltrated by spastics."

"Why look at him? He's not so pretty?"

"There's no fun in being an officer anymore."

AND SO THE DAYS DRAG ON WITH DRILL FOR ALL!

No Applause Please

The colors stream pass in proud review.

"Gee, Mom! Look at those wind-up soldiers with tin foil on their arms."

The corps of cadets passes by in parade.

BUT THE EFFORT MAKES FOR SMART PRECISION IN PARADES

"Okay you'se guys! Lets have a little eyes left on these broads."

No Snickering Please!

HOMECOMING FESTIVITIES

From a circle of cheering cadets around the bonfire at the pep rally, to the last hoarse yell at the end of the triumph over Flint Hill on the football field; so the Homecoming weekend ran. And somewhere in the middle was the first dance of the year to celebrate Homecoming at FMA. Under the sponsorship of the Senior Class and with the most grateful assistance of the administration, the Homecoming Dance was a great source of enjoyment for all who came as was the weekend's events for everyone on campus.

"Ah, come on Jennings; just one."

"Well that takes care of Glenn Hall; what's next?"

If you can't yell it, write it.

THE YULETIDE SPIRIT AT FMA

The months rolled by quickly and as the first of December came around, all eyes turned toward Christmas and all that beautiful leave. Each year at this time, the faculty officers of the individual dorms give the cadets in their halls a party in return for the nice gift the cadets are suppose to give the faculty. And then for an hour or two, the cadets have the pleasure of enjoying the splendid life of a faculty officer. The teachers are so happy, so cheerful at this time of the year. Could it be because we are leaving them in peace and quiet for 2 weeks?

"Chewy, Chewy, Tootsie Roll last along time."

"You boys just eat all you want."

"After four months and he wears a name tag to let us know who he is!"

THE 1967 MILITARY BALL

Under the glittering arch of uplifted sabres, entered cadets and ladies alike in their finest array, to a night of military pomp and glory. The mood was one of gaiety and supreme happiness in the fact that another milestone of life at FMA had been successfully reached.

The most stately social event of the school year, the Military Ball became an occasion that all cadets looked forward to and there was no disappointment in the colorful preparations that made it a night to remember. Swirling around a gaily lit Christmas tree and under the folds of creamy white parachutes, the couples spent the evening in dance and conversation and the cadets lived in the enjoyment of women and songs and maybe more.

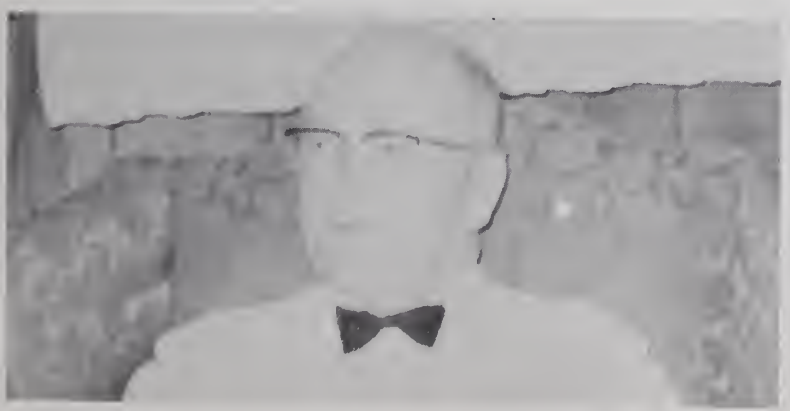
Order of the day: Eat, Drink, and be Merry.

The Belvederes provide the rhythm and beat To push the motion of spastic feet.

"Just a bit more in the punch and this place will be alright."

The hidden cup trick is really too old for us.

Mrs. Conway comes thru again—with "clean" punch.



Well they don't expect me to dance like that, do they?

And Mrs. Inscoe leads her husband throughout the festivities.

Ahhh . . .

So who else should play for a military dance?

THE JUNIOR SENIOR PROM

What do you do with a pink elephant?

Watch the feet! Watch the feet!

Ready! Aim! Fire!

As everyone said, the annual Junior-Senior Prom was a smashing success. Dancing was to the beat of the Swinging Machine amid the gracefully artistic set in FMA's auditorium. The walls of Frederick quaked and resounded with the noise of the evening's frivolities. Much of the night's probable conversation consisted of asking and answering questions of this and that object of curiosity found throughout the campus by the naturally curious girls. Many of the cadet's dates admitted that it was their "first time" on campus.

Afterwards, Blithe spirits soared higher at Sandbridge which, as everybody said, was also smashing. The spirit of the night burned deep into the hearts of all attending; ever remindful of the Junior-Senior Prom in FMA's auditorium-'68.

I told you not to swallow the ice.

They could have danced all night.

Named as Mother of the Year was Mrs. A. B. Coleman, mother of Cadet Lt. Mike Coleman, and Father of the Year was Mr. A. J. Z. Firestone, whose assistance in school affairs has been most greatly appreciated.

Mr. Firestone receives a most hearty congratulation from Colonel West for being selected Father of the Year.

. . . A Perfect Day

Every year on Mother's Day, the faculty and administration take the opportunity to honor those cadets who have distinguished themselves in all fields of endeavor, whether they be academic, athletic, or military in nature. All cadets look forward to this occasion as the turning point of the school year, where the sweat and effort of eight months has been brought to a successful conclusion.

After Mother's Day, we lean back and relax and cruise through the rest of the school year with contentment and a growing laziness. Everyone is living as if May 31 had already arrived. That's where Col. Plaine and, for the Seniors, Capt. Sale come flying in to the rescue of work and learning and everyone sighs, "Please make the days go faster."

SENIOR PARTY

Through the kindness and generosity of Mrs. Jackson, the entire senior class was treated to an evening of food, fun, and enjoyment. Everyone in the administration and in the senior class is most grateful for the pleasurable evening which Mrs. Jackson provided.

Everyone who graduates from high school has had the feeling that his was the best, the most accomplished senior class that has ever graduated. For the Class of '68, this claim can be justly stated. Throughout the entire year, the communication and co-operation between faculty and cadets has seldom been broken. The senior class, as leaders on the campus, deserve partial credit for this. We have shown to the faculty and to ourselves that, although teenagers at heart, we are well on the road to mature adulthood. For this and for so much more, the Senior Class of 1968 would like to thank the administration and the faculty, especially our class sponsors Maj. Mooring and Capt. Sale. We will not soon forget you for the memories are deep and we hope that you will not forget us for we have tried to gain your respect and trust.

He has given us a glorious example of what the truly dedicated military genius should be like.

And then on that annually auspicious occasion, witnessed by the willing audience of admiring friend and cadets, we watched as another inspiring military genius took over the paternal guidance of FMA's corps of staunch manhood, Capt. Fred Fridley took over command and may he reign well.

". . . if we have done anything, we hope we have done it well; if we have given anything, we hope we have given it sincerely--for we shall not pass this way again." SALUTATORIAN ADDRESS

Perhaps there are some of us who would not care to pass this way again, some who would rather push aside the memories of friendships welded solidly together in the struggle against what was once our "enemy." Perhaps there are even those who wouldn't care to remember the deeds that dubbed us instantly as carefree teenagers, devilish as they come, or the acts which showed us to be adults, fighting for ideas – our ideas.And maybe by some slight chance there are among us those whose life at Frederick has become a forgotten event of the past, to whom the joys, trials, hates, suppressed angers and loves of FMA meant nothing. Yes, perhaps there is someone like that–but, I DOUBT IT!

The Valedictory Address

CLASS OF 1968

To my fellow classmates, I would like to challenge you to think with me for a moment.

The course of recorded history, especially American history, has been guided to a remarkable degree by a small dissenting minority. This minority, whose will to make their revolutionary views known and their strength in pursuing the final goal of their beliefs, has made them dominant over the often complacent majority. The influences of this "leading minority" are still present in our culture today: the formation of Christianity by Jesus Christ, Martin Luther, Galileo, Thomas Jefferson, Voltaire, among many others are examples of the dominant role of the dissenting minority in our society in the past.

This long series of political, social, and religious protests is still occurring in the Twentieth Century but with one important difference. Man has finally been forced to realize the truth about his origin and his character. It has only been in the Twentieth Century that man, through the insistence of dissenters such as Sigmond Freud, has publically recognized that there was such a thing as sex, that he was indeed descended from lower forms of life, as Charles Darwin had previously shown. It has only been recently that the majority of the people have been forced by a few people concerned to realize that all men are not created equal, that we live in a society which allows some to be hungry, allows men to live in destitution, and allows a denial of certain peoples rights as members of the state and as members of the human race. And so now we find ourselves in an age where what was once private and unmentionable, through necessity, has become a topic of great discussion.

But we are still in the transitional period where the thoughts, and conducts of behavior, and the folkways of yesterday are still lingering on in the face of this new appraisal of man. And as time progresses, we become increasingly aware of the fact that the mores which have guided mankind for several thousand years have become too inadequate, too incredulous and too incompatible with life in reality. Where there was once brotherhood, God and country, we have only uncertainties. Is there a God? Do we owe allegiance to the nation? Should we concern ourselves with our fellowman? And in general, we find that where there was stability in the past, today we have only instability. All this hassled to a loss of morals among the population of the industrialized world with little or nothing to take its place.

Can this explain why crime has increased 44% since 1958, why 38 people watched a young girl in N.Y. being murdered and did nothing to help, and why sane people take drugs that turn their minds to jelly just to see colors. This partially explains it.

The youth of today, as products of this frenzied age, typify the times they live in: students rioting in Paris, marching on Washington, D.C., fighting at Columbia University, protesting throughout society, and aiming their protests at society. Why is there so much discord today? Perhaps this question can be partially answered by the fact that we are in a transitional period. The mores of yesterday must be redefined and if necessary, replaced. The youth of today must glean from all philosophies, whether they be from the Koran, the Bible, Thoreau's concepts, whatever; we must choose from these philosophies the principles of moral behavior which are applicable to society as it exists today, and where there are none, we must find them. We must redefine man's relationship with himself and his environment and in doing so we have no steadfast guidelines, no ideals to model after. So where can the solution be found? There are many solutions as can be seen in the many dissenting groups which spring from society. This is where the answer will be found, by the "leading minority" who have the will and the determination to put forth their views boldly in the face of opposition.

America, a nation of dissenters, must have the prudence to allow the voices of protest to remain upon the plane of concern and justice and we, today's youth, must have the strength to put them there through intellectual protest, but within the framework of common decency toward our fellowman on all levels of thought and action.

Here at Frederick Military Academy we have received the basis for independent thought which is so important in this new endeavor. But even more important, under the military system we have received an appreciation for free thought and free action. It is upon this firm basis that you and I must prepare ourselves to take a responsible position of leadership in society with but one goal in mind: When in the twilight of our lives we can look back and say that the world was better for our having been here.

Mike Coleman

As life is action and passion, it is required of a man that he should share the passion of his time, at peril of being judged not to have lived.

Oliver Wendell Holmes

THE COACHES

Oh Coaches, our Coaches,
Your dire job is done.
For three periods a week,
All we did was run.

For its run, sweat, endure;
Our blood goes to our head.
On the ground my buddies lie,
Fallen stiff and dead.

We keep it up, ceaselessly,
Till our coaches nod their head.
We drag ourselves back to our dorm,
And decline into our beds.

To our sports director, Davis,
Not to mention all the rest,
We owe you a lot at F.M.A.;
For we're seldom second best.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The publication of a yearbook is a harrowing task, requiring the hard work and efforts of many people. I would like to acknowledge Mike Coleman as the hardest working assistant-editor ever to be known in the annals of yearbook making. Without Mike's help, this book you have just read could never have been completed. He worked long and hard and took on many responsibilities which were not his. The other members of my annual staff also deserve due credit. They are: Bob Schidle, who did the sports section, frustratingly; Jim Morton, doing his bit with the faculty and administration; Woody Gay, my talented artist; Wayne Heath, who helped out in the layout department; finally, Charlie King and Steve Luther, who came along late but helped when help was needed most. My photographers, Larry Johnson and Bill McCreary, though sometimes procrastinators, did excellent work and took most of the pictures you have seen before you.

Without the help of the administration, our task would have been made impossible. Major Mooring has pulled me through this final year, always with good advice when it was needed. He has served well as advisor to the yearbook staff, and although I know it is added responsibility, I hope he will continue in this position in the coming years. Colonel Inscoe and Colonel West have my deepest and sincerest thanks for their cooperation and for the pictures they provided the annual staff. Colonel Plaine deserves many thanks for his help with the corps and for putting up with us. Mrs. Willis of Smith and Welton should be given credit for the fine pictures she provided for the corps. Bill Hash and Delmar have my appreciation for putting up with our late deadlines and many headaches. To Capt. Sale, who captioned our play pictures and who somehow withstood my inexperienced acting ability throughout the Senior Play, I leave with the knowledge that he has helped the annual and myself immensely.

Last of all, but not least, I would like to acknowledge you, the Corps of Cadets. For certainly without you, this annual could never have been printed. I hope that after all the efforts of the above, you have enjoyed reading the 1968 CANNON.

LAST WILL

Being of Sound Mind and Body, I . . .

Ray Jackson, leave Frederick one can opener, to Big Al five broken windows, and 30 lost golf balls.

David B. Jezequel, leave Jack Wells all my Italian slang words, my telephone, all my signs, and Fred Fridley on Col. Inscoe's door step.

Gil Macklin, leave to John Phillips a sincere hope that he won't follow in my footsteps, and to Jack Wells, Spanky, and Jersey I leave one Boston Cream Pie.

Buzz Vinson, leave Maj. Rick, who has a bad habit of walking in while I'm asleep, a pair of creaky shoes.

Jackson Wells, leave my 427 cu. in., 500 h.p. Japanese Rick-shaw to be used for the duty officers . . . slicks included.

Rusty Bryant, leave Capt. Sale one years worth of dirty looks, broken tape of sound effects, and a taperecorder to play with.

Mike Broadwell, leave the money the "Porno Brothers" made, to Capt. Presson to do with as he sees best.

David Finder, leave everything that I stole in four years to anyone who wants them. (Just to keep my name out of the D.B.)

Mike Forrest, leave to Maj. Ayres the ability to sit in a classroom and say absolutely nothing.

Don Holcomb, leave to Coach Outland one road map so that he won't get lost next year as many times as he did this year.

Sandy Block, leave to Capt. Sale one slide rule, and to Maj. Mooring all the money we didn't spend on the annual.

Wayne Heath, leave Capt. Reynolds a sound-proof wall to keep out all disturbances.

Cliff Williford, leave 4 years of blood, sweat, and tears.

Leslie Todd, leave the title of "Clunk" to Joseph Guida, and to Capt. Colonna I leave one slightly used blue cashmere sweater and the title of "El Supremo" to whoever deserves it next year.

George Schinto, leave to Dave Hall a night to remember in Morris Hall.

Robert Pond, leave Hodges Hall with a new lamp shade and 20 cartons of Pall Mall cigarettes.

Pat Nealon, leave Capt. Sale the ability to read "chicken scratch", one untaken IQ test, and the knowledge that his class made existence possible.

Emile Meyer, leave one behind.

Kevin James Mayo, of the class of '68, do hereby bequeath to my fellow Cubans, Frederick Military Academy, in the hopes that they will be able to stay.

Bruce MacLean, leave to anyone who wants it, my ability to get six day leaves and short weekends.

Bruce Lustig, leave to the cadets of Frederick Military Academy all the fun, the work, the accomplishments, and failures I have experienced in my three years, in hopes that they too will find a goal in life and strive towards it.

Chris Hickman, leave my liquid diet at the Holiday Inn to Baker Killam and just plain leave FMA.

William Glover, leave Richard Little more people like Branch so he can keep his shoes shined, and to Bill Jones, one night that we should not have slept.

AND TESTAMENTS

Allan Jennings, (Spanky), leave to Maj. Ayres 25 points, and to some poor lieutenant, Baylor Hall in hopes of keeping the name remembered.

Ed Ball, leave the next Sgt. Major one pair of slightly bloodstained stripes.

Tom Brady, leave to Jim Allton my record for not going to drill once all year.

Frank Lawford, leave H. B. Killam the keys to my V. W. and the ability to venture to the outer limits (Texas).

Jim Stanley, leave to any Junior my ability to get over-night leave every weekend of the school year.

Jeff McVey, leave to Frank Lawford, Spanky Jennings, Bill McClure, Baker Killam, and Chris Hickman the worst "morning after" that I can remember. OOOOOHH!!!

Bill Jones, leave to Col. Plaine 1 pair of slightly used Lt.'s stripes and the attic in White Hall, and to "Jersey" the James River Bridge.

Woody Gay, leave Steve Campbell one lost radio in the heat vent, and to the administration my thanks.

William H. McClure, hereby leave one of Maj. Ayres lectures, one of Capt. Reynolds jokes, and Capt. Sale's B. S. ability, to anyone who wants them.

Mike Coleman (Slide Rule), leave a tried and tested edition of "How to Look Smart With An IQ of .306", and the one page edition of "The Better Side of FMA."

Ronnie McCarthy, leave my stripes to Capt. Colonna and 3/5 of tequila to Baker.

Richard LeCount, leave Maj. Ayres one dead battery from my Chevy.

Ken Boaz, leave to R.W.W., one pair of dirty sweat socks, to D.M.T. one empty beer can, and to Willy Glover my friendship.

Gary Gaupp, leave to FMA my ability to avoid demerits and to John Borror and Tom Fletcher my album "The Merry-Go-Round Broke Down".

"Darb" Daley, leave with whats left of this years preps (Darb's Raiders).

Al Blanchard, leave Ray Jackson the four left-over cases of beer in the attic of Parrish Hall. I refuse to leave a can-opener. (no pop-tops Ha! ha!).

Tom Atkinson, leave Capt. Sale my "opinion" and I leave Col. West an unforgettable memory.

Steve Campbell, leave for four years in the Navy.

Jack Fletcher, leave to Maj. Ayres one siren to start the class off swell and to FVF a lot of good luck to a great friend for the future.

Dennis Briggs, leave one pilfered Supply Hall to "anyone"!

Tom Gordon, leave this beloved school to anyone who will suffer 3 years of it.
